How to dump data from EEPROM more clearly

The EEPROM acknowledges the device address and serially clocks out the data word. The microcontroller does not respond with a "0" but does generate a following stop condition (see Figure 8). Wow, that paragraph is really hard to read, but in essence it says that a random read is a write of the one byte address to be read, then it can be ...

Sometimes when working with immobilizer EEPROMs, the ideal way of programming the EEPROM is by doing it while it is in the circuit, as removing it, programming, and resoldering it back to the circuit, add a bit more of effort to complete the job. Doing it "in-circuit" can be accomplished in many ECMs (not all) by using the SOIC-8 clip,...

Thanks, I tried that, and the int values are different but still incorrect. The array is an uint8_t. I think it must be the EEPROM write process. The initial data array is a const unsigned char array of hex values.. The EEPROM write command individually assigns a block of the initial array values (defined as 'const unsigned char') to an array data[block] that is defined as uint8_t to be ...
