Nick Chater's The Mind is Flat: The Illusion of Mental Depth and the Improvised Mind is a great book. Chater's basic argument is that there are no 'hidden depths' to our minds. The idea that we have an inner mental world with beliefs, motives and fears is just a work of imagination. As Chater puts it:

What We Know About the Human Mind | Psychology Today

The very idea of a true self, buried deep in your subconscious is an illusion. So says Nick Chater in his new and potentially industry-destroying book The Mind is Flat: The Illusion of Mental Depth and The Improvised Mind. Psychoanalysts have spent many years listening to 'clients', trying to find the subconscious knot driving their behaviour.

So how does having a comparative mind mean that the mind is flat and doesn't have that. Well, I think there is a connection, but it's not a completely straightforward one. So you could believe in a comparative mind and not go as far as saying that the mind is as it were wholly flat, and I'll say what I mean by that in a moment.
